Hi Everyone,

I know I have not posted updates on a regular basis. This week my main focus was on getting the brd file uploaded to OSHpark by the deadline on monday. There were some technical glitches, and it was very difficult to find anyone in the engineering building to help on monday morning. Eventually I had to email it to Andrew and he was able to make enough corrections to allow the file to upload. I have been making some updates to the BOM and including the prices for larger quantities. I still really dislike GitHub with a passion and in spite of the supposed features that are good for programmers, for the way we have been using it there are many very clunky steps.
